CMDHD is Celebrating Public Health Week: April 7-13

Central Michigan District Health Department (CMDHD) is celebrating National Public Health Week (NPHW) from April 7 – 13, 2025. Our goal is to help people stay healthy by providing important services like vaccines, WIC programs, and disease prevention. We also focus on emergency preparedness, environmental safety, harm reduction, and reproductive health.

Throughout the week, we'll be sharing social media posts about key public health topics, including healthy communities, climate change, health equity, advocacy, and the future of public health. Be sure to follow us on Facebook and Instagram to learn more!

“National Public Health Week is a time to celebrate the work we do to keep our communities healthy,” said Steve Hall, CMDHD Health Officer. “Our public health team works hard every day to protect and support the people we serve, and we’re proud to be part of this effort.”

This year marks the 30th anniversary of NPHW, an event created by the American Public Health Association to highlight the impact of public health. The 2025 theme, “It Starts Here,” reminds us that everyone can play a role in creating a healthier community. When we work together, we make a big difference!
